New Naturalists

The most recent title No.116 'Plant Pests' was published in early January. We have a number of copies left and are offering them for sale at £45.00 (RRP £50.00). We expect to take delivery of NN.117 'Plant Galls' by Margaret Redfern at the end of March. We will charge catalogue customers £45.00 plus post (RRP £50.00) and if you would like a copy, do let us know. We have provided some detail on this titles content at the end of this catalogue.

Entomology

Our entomology section is quite large with a considerable selection of works related to Hemiptera.

C.Arden (bookseller) – website

Our website is now 2 years old and regularly updated with new stock. We have also added several thousand book images which we hope makes purchasing easier.

We are always interested in purchasing large or small collections in our specialist subject area and are quite happy to travel to view.

The comparative study of flowers began in temperate regions and as such most books are about temperate flowers. This volume concentrates on tropical flowers which whilst sharing many features seen in temperate flowers, exhibit phenomena which are purely tropical. The first part of the volume deals with general structure and biological features of flowers and shows facets of their diversity. The second part focuses on the flowers of selected tropical plants and emphasizes their structural and biological idiosyncrasies and evolutionary features.

This is a small concise field guide to aid location and identification of the wild orchids native to Britain and Ireland. The chief feature is the tabulation of each species characteristics in the field and their differences from other species, together with information on names, flowering dates, variation and subspecies.

These two volumes have been bound together in later full mottled calf. A few light stains to top of some pages o/w. a very good copy of a scarce work. [40357] £500.00
This is an important work on the flora of southern Indochina (now South Vietnam). Loureiro (d.1791) was born in Lisbon in 1710. He became a missionary in 1735 and although not a professional botanist was much respected for his botanical knowledge. The flora was written after his return to Portugal in 1782 and he was later admitted to the Royal Society and to Academia Real Das Sciencias. The work follows the Linnaean system with indexes by genus and species. Much of his work in Indochina was involved with native drugs, this was because of the difficulty of procuring European medicines in that region at that time.

It is to Kingdon-Ward that we have to thank for the many Himalayan plants we now find in our gardens. Rhododendrons come to mind first but there are the primulas, meconopsis (nicknamed the blue poppy) and some of the most spectacular lillies. He was a most intrepid traveller, undaunted by discomfort or hardship. A good read.

The Naming of Names is about the men who searched for the rules of nature's game. What were plants to be called? What were the similarities and differences? How should they be grouped and ordered? The story starts in Athens, where Aristotle's pupil, Theophrastus, was the first person to write about plants. Gradually in Europe, plants gained identities and it was for practical reasons - that many medicines were made from plants - that the need to differentiate plants existed. But 2,000 years of looking, writing and theorising passed before any rules became clear. The journey for a world order traced here for the first time, involves the culture of Islam, the first expeditions to the Indies and the first settlers in the New World.

This book treats the True Butterflies of the World. It has been designed to serve as an easy guide to the identification of the True Butterflies (Papilionoidea) at least to genus level. It contains extremely clear and accurate figures in colour, of at least one species for most, if not all, of the known genera of this important Superfamily of the order Lepidoptera. It is superior in numbers of figures, quality of printing, and scientific utility to any similar work.

There are some 80,000 Hemiptera (true bugs) that have been described of which some 1,700 occur in the British Isles. Most feed on plant sap which gives this group a great deal of importance in agriculture, both by direct damage and by transmission of diseases. This volume explores the biology of this fascinating group and provides a very useful bibliography.

One of the earliest aims of the Horticultural Society (now known as the Royal Horticultural Society (RHS)) was that 'the Society shall from time to time publish a volume of papers of the same size and form as the Transactions of the Adelphi Society [the Society for the Encouragement of Arts, later renamed the Royal Society of Arts]... That the Committee shall have the power of selecting the papers for publication, and that no paper shall be published before it has been read at a sitting of the Society'. This is complete ten volumes. One of the more important journals of the day. Contributors were many and include such eminent people as Sir Joseph Banks, Thomas Andrew Knight, John Wedgwood, Thomas Hogg, and Hugh Ronalds. With exquisite hand coloured fruit plates by William Hooker, artist to the Horticultural Society. Other plates are by Miss Drake and Mrs Withers.

421. How & Parsons. The Florist's Journal and Gardener's Record. For the Year 1844 & 1845. Pub. A. Adlard. 1844-45 pp.vi, 252; 284 with 30 fine hand coloured plates. 2 volumes bound in one in half calf and marbelled boards. A little foxing to a few prelim. pages o/w. a handsome copy of this scarce volume. [34400] £250.00

This Journal was published from May 1840 to 1845 and then reissued in 1846 as British Florist, or Lady's Journal of Horticulture.

422. Knight, Thomas, Andrew. *Pomona Herefordiensis. Old Cider and Perry Fruits. Pub. Agricultural Soc. Quite handsomely rebound fairly recently in blue boards; a very similar colour to that of the original binding. The original gilt 'nest' decoration was saved from each volume and has been incorporated on the front board of each volume. Some foxing toward the end of each volume, o/w. contents very bright and clean. A lovely set of this sought after work. [40488] £800.00
435. Parkinson, John. Theatricum Botanicum or The Theater of Plantae. Pub. London. 1640 pp.1755 with hundreds of fine wood cut illustrations. The frontispiece which is complete is mounted on contemporary paper. The very last page 'the Errata fic Corrigenenda' which is the very last page in the herbal is in facsimile on 17th century paper. With these exceptions this is a complete, clean and delightful copy bound in later full calf. [39452] £6,000.00
This herbal was published in 1640 by John Parkinson who devoted much of his life to the writing of this magnificent and arguably the most detailed herbal in the English language. In many ways it is a far superior herbal to that of John Gerard's. Had the title been more 'catchier' it may have surpassed the fame of the Gerard's herbal. Parkinson completed the work when he was 72. It is almost twice the size of Gerard's listing some 3,800 plants. Complete copies of this herbal are scarce.
436. Pradhan, U.C. and Lachungpa, S.T. Sikkim-Rhododendrons. Collector's Edition. Pub. Primulaceae Books, West Bengal. 1990 pp. 80 with 49 life-size plates, 36 of which are beautifully hand-coloured. Bound in cloth in a dustwrapper with a hand-coloured rhododendron on front panel. A sumptuous work. This is copy no. 3 of a total print run of 261. With a dedication from the authors to Mrs Helen Barton (presumed a subscriber) and loosely inserted is some pre-publication advertising material including 3 hand-coloured plates and 3 un-coloured plates. A fine copy. Very scarce. [40503] £400.00
One hundred and forty years after Sir Joseph Hooker published his monograph 'Rhododendrons of Sikkim Himalaya', this is the first complete work on this subject by native amateur botanists. The species illustrated are the natural hybrids and varieties of Rhododendrons known to date (1990) from Sikkim Himalaya and Darjeeling Gorkha Hill Council. Their history, etymology, culture, field characters for id and detailed botanical and habitat notes are also included. The paper used in this copy is known as Nepal paper. For ten centuries, in the area of the Himalaya, Nepal and Tibet, craftsmen have been producing handmade paper from the bark of Daphne bholua, D. papyracea, D. involucreta and Edgeworthia gardneri. It is a very durable paper, likened to leather and has a smooth silky surface. The paper does not crack or break when folded, is resistant to moths and is not affected by changes in humidity. The use of Nepal paper has in the main, been replaced by modern papers. It is still used however in Nepal and Bhutan for official work and for writing Buddhist religious manuscripts. The Nepal paper used in this book is a Bhutanese version, locally known as Desho. Though originally meant to run to 311 copies, a lack of this Nepal paper led to a total production of 261 copies of which 200 were printed on Nepal paper, whilst the balance was printed on ivory paper.
437. Pratt, Anne. The Flowering Plants and Ferns Great Britain. in 5 volumes plus two additional volumes on ferns and grasses and sedges. Pub. S.P.C.K. circa 1880 7 volumes all bound in matching bindings in half green morocco with raised bands. A handsome set. [39453] £380.00
438. Robinson, William. Gravetye Manor. or Twenty Years' Work round an Old Manor House. 1st. Pub. John Murray. 1911 pp.xii, 155 with frontpiece and 36 other engravings. Folio. Handmade paper. A little wear to spine ends o/w. fine. [39454] £400.00
439. Ronalds, Hugh. Pyrus Malus Brentfordiensis: or a Concise Description of Selected Apples. Pub. Longman, Rees et al. 1831 pp.xii, 91 with 42 plates drawn from nature on stone by the author's daughter. This copy has been cleaned up presumably when rebinding by cropping the paper, which in some plates (c.12), means that the captions are made a little difficult to read and/or the shading/image of the apple is a little obscured by the gutter. Some scattered foxing and the vast majority of these spots are very light in colour. Handsomely bound book in quarter calf leather. Overall in fine condition. Scarce. [35098] £900.00
Hugh Ronalds was noted for growing fruit trees and by 1829 he was growing 300 varieties. This was commemorated in this book. He supplied many plants to Kew Gardens between 1801 and 1816 and his nursery supplied some 14,000 shrubs for Kensal Green Cemetery.

440. Shepherd, Mandy. The Falkland Islands. An Artist's Portfolio. 1st. Pub. Peregrine Books. 1998 pp.xxii, 83 with 20 colour plates and a further 30 coloured & 32 b/w. illustrations in text. Beautifully bound in half blue morocco with marbelled boards and slip-case. Limited to 368 copies of which this is no.203, signed by the artist. Fine copy. [35127] £300.00
441. Sinclair, Isabella. Indigenous Flowers of the Hawaiian Islands. Pub. Sampson Lowe. 1885 pp.44 plus 44 fine chromolithographed plates by the author. A few marks on front cover. Spine re-laid and repair to one corner and bottom of rear board. Title page with a little foxing and plate one with a few fine spots (maybe paint) other plates are generally very clean with just a few with finger marks. Overall a very good copy of this scarce book. Folio. [38480] £4,500.00
Isabella Simpson was born in Scotland, spent some of her life in New Zealand and after marrying moved to Hawaii. From an early age she showed artistic promise and painted flowers both in New Zealand and later in Hawaii. This was the first book to illustrate flowers from Hawaii in colour. Scarce.
442. Sowerby, John E. British Wild Flowers. To which is added a Supplement containing 180 figures of recently discovered flowering plants by John W. Salter, and the Ferns, Horsetails, and Club-Mosses by John E. Sowerby. Described, with an Introduction and a Key to the Natural Orders by C. Pierpoint Johnson. Gurney & Jackson, 1914. Pp.lii,186 with hand-coloured plates. All edges gilt. Worn at extremities, particularly head of spine; lacks flyleaf. Illustrations clean. [20558] £100.00
443. Stoeber, PH. D, D.H. (Translator). The Life of Sir Charles Linnaeus. Knight of the Swedish Order of the Polar Star, &c. &c. to which is added a copious list of his works, and a biographical sketch of the life of his son. Pub. B. and J. White. 1794 pp.xxxviii, 435 with some foxing to ffe, engraved frontis. and title page and to several pages at the rear of the volume. Otherwise, the contents are exceptionally clean and bright. Handsomely bound in half-calf, with the spine expertly relaid. The spine is divided into 6 sections with 5 raised bands; and is decorated in 5 sections with a gilt floral motif and in the other section, the title is also gilt. The boards are marbled and in very good condition as is the calf-binding. End-papers are clean and fresh being several years old and internally the binding is in very good condition. A quite lovely copy. [34598] £400.00
444. Thorburn, A. British Birds. Pub. Longmans, Green and Co. 1916 4 vols. complete. Vols. I and II are 2nd. Ed. and vols. III and IV are first edition. Takes the reader through historic gardens at different periods, and explains why these gardens were made and their original purpose.
456. Bazin, G. Paradeisos- The Art of the Garden. 1st. Pub. Cassell. 1990 pp.263 with many fine plans, paintings and photographs. A fine copy in sl. chipped dw. with one small closed tear. [36692] £25.00
The author is France's leading art historian and considers the garden as a major form of artistic expression. From the beginnings, in the East and West alike, the garden has provided an image of a lost golden age, when mankind lived in innocent harmony with nature.
457. Beck, C. Fritillaries A Gardener's Introduction to the Genus Fritillaria. 1st. Pub. Faber & Faber. 1953 pp.96 with 40 plates and text figs. Feint foxing to prelims. o/w. vg. [40310] £30.00
458. Bisgrove, R. William Robinson. The Wild Gardener. Pub. Frances Lincoln. 2008 pp. 256 with b/w. and colour photographs and illus. A fine copy in same dw. [37587] £30.00
Curiously, despite his enormous literary output and his position at the centre of and international circle of distinguished horticulturists, William Robinson remains a suprisingly enigmatic figure. He was generous to friends and retainers but ferocious in his attacks on opponents. A populariser rather than a pioneer, but undoubtedly one of the greatest figures in late nineteenth and early twentieth-century gardening.
459. Bishop, M, Davis, A. and Grimshaw, J. Snowdrops. Rev. Ed. Pub. Griffin Press. 2006 pp.xii, 372. Illustrated in colour throughout. A mint copy of this sought after book. [33765] £50.00

Monty Don's first book. Don is descended from the Keiller family of Dundee who became the biggest confectioners in Britain, overtaking other family-run businesses like Cadbury and Rowntree and by 1877, they were worth the equivalent of £13m. When Don moved to The Hanburys in Herefordshire (late 1980s) the garden was a ruin. He wanted to transform it to include terraces, a croquet lawn, an orchard, herb and kitchen gardens and secret gardens. The Prickotty Bush is his diary of the development of his garden and within it he describes his journey through freaks of weather, ill health and financial disaster.

485. Feltwell, John. The Naturalist's Garden. 1st. Pub. Salem House. 1987 pp.160 with many fine illus. Fine in dw. [36441] £10.00
Many of our present wild gardens have their roots in the seventeenth century when natural history became a gentleman's pastime at which physicians and parsons excelled. But perhaps more than any other, Gertrude Jekyll has influenced generations of gardeners as can be seen at Sissinghurst and Churchill's naturalist paradise at Chartwell. The author shows how even the smallest garden can be transformed into a sanctuary for wildlife.

Volume 1 is titled 'Discovery' with volume 2 being 'Prospect'. These volumes form part of the Sierra Club's Format Series, details of which are provided on the verso of the dustwrappers. An extract from the foreword by Kenneth Brower reads 'This is a book in praise of islands. Its two volumes are an investigation of the virtues of islands as points of reference, both scientific and poetic. They are concerned with islands as laboratories, refuges, genetic reservoirs, and places for future discovery. The book arose from concern for islands and the fragile forms they have evolved, the gentle insular wildness that is vanishing so rapidly around the world'.

In this book, after describing his working methods, Robert writes of the inspiration behind the 90 prints illustrated. These often evoke memories which allow him to wander into autobiographical anecdotes, thoughts about the artistic process and any other ideas that a particular print provokes. In the final section he demonstrates the use of linocuts for posters and book jackets, especially those he has designed for the prestigious New Naturalist series.

Frederick J Waydelin, dedicated egg collector, came to write this book, completing it in a typed version in 1944; but it remained unpublished. He became interested in birdnesting as a schoolboy in the late 19th century. Over the following few years, he became increasingly interested in egg collecting. Waydelin was admitted to the British Ornithologists' Union in 1920, but his membership was shortlived, and his resignation in 1922 may well have been connected to his egg collecting exploits. Later in the mid 1930s he ceased egg collecting and rejoined the B.O.U. (1934), but again his membership was shortlived and he resigned for the second time in 1936. An interesting historical account.

853. Whitaker, J. Catalogue of the Franklin Egg Collection. Privately Printed. 2010 pp.vii, 264 with colour plates throughout. New. Bound in quarter calf, with slipcase. A fascinating read for all those with an interest in oology. [40518] £150.00
George Herbert Massey Franklin was the nephew of George Herbert Lings and his great uncle was Herbert Massey. Both these men were very well respected oologists and George went on to follow in their footsteps. He was a member of the British Oological Association (now the Jourdain Society) and some of his work proved to be of considerable scientific value, including his specimens of Peregrine Falcon Eggs. In the early 1990s, George decided that given his age (approaching 90) that his collection would be better looked after by someone else and offered it up to Jim Whitaker. Jim took on the collection and helped to conserve it with the long term intention of passing it on to a Museum. In 1995, Jim's house was raided by West Yorkshire Police and the RSPB who confiscated the collection despite being legally held by Jim. A lengthy and costly court case ensued after which Jim was given back most of the collection.

In metropolitan regions across the world, efforts to cope with pressing problems of growth and development have pointed to the need for a fuller understanding of the spatial structure of urban areas. It is believed that a deeper understanding of the geography of various city systems will lead to a firmer foundation on which to base policy decisions.

Next title in New Naturalist series – ‘Plant Galls’

Our price £45.00 (RRP £50.00)

New Naturalist No. 117 will be ‘Plant Galls’ and has been prepared by Margaret Redfern. Publication date is expected to be 31st March 2011.

Galls are growths on plants. These growths are formed of plant tissue, but are caused by other organisms. Since most galls do not cause economic damage to crop plants, research into their existence has traditionally been quite sparse.

However, the insect cycles involved and the gall structures themselves are very good examples of the complexity of nature. Galls have been known about since ancient times and both the ancient Greeks and Chinese used them in herbal medicine and in later times they had a variety of commercial uses.

Margaret Redfern explores galls providing an up-to-date perspective on the different types and sizes, together with information on the wide range of organisms including fungi, insects and mites which cause them. Further, she discusses their ecology, the communities within galls, their evolution and distribution together with human and historical perspectives.
